

<http://www.addictlab.com/index.php/theNetherlands>

Leftover restaurant Rest.

This summer Wageningen houses a new, temporary restaurant called 'Rest'. Rest is the Dutch word for leftovers as well as short for restaurant and is an outdoor restaurant that solely uses leftovers to cook their meals.

Made by stacking 45 picnic tables, Rest. is an art project as well as a restaurant, invented by artist Martijn Engelbregt and freelance cook Miguel Brugman.

Rest. will serve lunchdinner on five Sundays up until september 21st.

To prepare these meals they use edible weeds from the Wageningen area, leftovers from farmers and fairs in the neighbourhood, but also that half a package of macaroni out of your cupboard that you don't fancy anymore, but don't want to throw away either.