

<http://www.flickr.com/photos/paladijn/3875519348/>

A gift from the city of Leeuwarden

This is what I found in front of my door today... Inhabitants can use their stone next week to build up a monument near the new location of the heavily debated (including a referendum ending in 'no', yet being ignored for not enough people voting) new Frisian museum in the town center.

In my opinion it's a nice idea to connect the people of Leeuwarden to the new museum location.

update: fail

The mayor has requested to stop the distribution of the stones since there's 'an indication' people may use the bricks for other purposes, such as throwing in the windows of the town hall... As if they won't pick something else if they have the plan.

To take full advantage of Flickr, you should use a JavaScript-enabled browser and install the latest version of the Macromedia Flash Player.

Comments

R. de Jong says:

Sil'k dy efkes mei in bakstien yn 'e bek batse? xD

Posted 2 weeks ago. (permalink)

YiRui says:

the MOST weird gift from city hall ever!!!

Posted 2 weeks ago. (permalink)